Subject: Notice of Posting Violation and Removal

Hello Martin,

The Center for Residence Life is writing about a printed item found on October 31, 2026 titled "Disputation on the Power and Efficacy of Indulgences." It had been affixed with a nail to the tunnel wall about feet from the Gracie's Tunnel Connection designated posting area. The item has been removed and is available for pickup at the Residence Life Service Desk.

Please understand that the Center for Residence Life does not endorse, and takes no position on, the content of any posting. Under University Policy C11.0, restrictions on postings are content and viewpoint neutral. This letter concerns the manner of your posting and potential types of speech not protected on RIT properties. Our review identified the following issues:

1. Posting procedure (Res. Life Designated Posting Protocol, §§ A, F, G, and I)

• Stamping and posting. The item did not carry a Residence Life stamp, and it was not posted by Residence Life staff. Unstamped postings are removed regardless of content.

• Location. The item was placed outside a designated posting area. Proximity to a designated area does not count as being in one.

• Size. Your zine unfolds to a size exceeding the 11″x17″ poster maximum.

2. Method of attachment (Terms & Conditions §§ 5.09, 8.09)

• Nails. Decorations in RIT housing must be hung with 3M Command Strips. A nail driven into a wall is not a Command Strip. The cost of patching the wall will be assessed to your student account under the damage provisions.

• Other methods. Please note for the future that duct tape and gaffer tape are also not permitted on vertical surfaces in residential areas. Posters must be hung in designated areas, not on walls, using approved methods.

3. Speakers and events (C11.0 § IV.5 and IV.6)

All speakers and events must be organized by an RIT-affiliated organization. If you intend to host a public debate, please register it through a recognized student organization so that appropriate funds can be assessed for tables, seating, campus safety, and other necessary aspects.

Your posting also invites people who cannot attend to "debate by letter." To avoid confusion: those letters also cannot be nailed to walls.

4. Solicitation and proselytizing (Terms & Conditions § 10.06)

While University Policy C11.0 is clear that RIT can only regulate creative expression through time, place, and manner restrictions that are content neutral, we are required to note several passages raise concerns under the housing solicitation policy:

• Charitable giving. Thesis 43 states that he "who gives to the poor or lends to the needy does a better work than buying pardons." Whatever its merits, this appears to direct residents toward a specific financial activity. Solicitation or canvassing without prior approval from RIT Housing and the Center for Residence Life is prohibited.

• Commercial activity. Posting materials that mention the sale of pardons, even critically, invite scrutiny under § 9.01, which prohibits using RIT housing for any commercial purpose. We also note that the sellers you describe are not RIT-registered vendors.

• Religious exhortation. Thesis 94 states that "Christians are to be exhorted" to follow Christ "through penalties, deaths, and hell." Religious solicitation (proselytizing) is prohibited in RIT housing. Posting a document that exhorts residents toward a particular faith in a common area may fall within this prohibition.

5. Subversive speech (C11.0 Procedures)

Your posting may constitute subversive speech, which C11.0 procedures classify as unprotected; staff have elected not to pursue this at this time.

6. Harassment and discrimination are not tolerated at RIT (D18.0)

Several theses consign unnamed parties to eternal condemnation (Thesis 32), declare them "enemies of Christ" (Thesis 53), or pronounce them "anathema and accursed" (Thesis 71). Staff reviewed these passages under the harassment provision of the Student Code of Conduct (D18.0).

We concluded that no identifiable member of the RIT community has been named. Divine judgment also falls outside the Center for Residence Life's jurisdiction. Should any resident come to reasonably believe these theses are directed at them personally, the matter may be reviewed under § 7.02 of the Housing Terms & Conditions and escalated to the Student Conduct Process, and you may need to meet with a Conduct Officer under Policy D18.0.

The discrimination provision of D18.0 also states that religion is a protected group, class, or category. Per Policy C06.0 IV.B, "when conduct has the result of disproportionally impacting members of a particular group, class, or category, it may be deemed to be discrimination in violation of this Policy regardless of whether a discriminatory intent exists." After review, your theses targeting opposing religious leaders as wicked (Thesis 10) or preaching "unchristian doctrine" (Thesis 35) are in clear violation and, although vague, we worry they target members of RIT's Spirituality and Religious Life (SRL) team. Although it is out of the Center for Residence Life's domain, the SRL team looks forward to speaking to you about your theses. The Catholic Newman Community has a minister who is a confidential resource and can be found in the Schmitt Interfaith Center. Perhaps he and the RIT Ombuds Office can arrange for a meeting to help you solve your dispute with your fellow Christians in a non-disruptive manner.

Within 48 hours, please:

1. Retrieve your materials from the Residence Life Service Desk, located in Kate Gleason Hall, 1st Floor, on dorm-side. Our office is open 9AM-11PM M-F, and 11AM-11PM on the weekends.

2. If you would like to repost, submit a design of no more than 11"x17" through CampusGroups for Campus Life approval. Then bring your approval email and copies to the Service Desk for stamping.

3. If your disputation is a demonstration, include the required disclaimer that the event represents the views of the organizer and not RIT.

We understand that there is no explicit procedure in place for publications, which your posting appears to be. That being the case, publications affixed to vertical surfaces are considered posters, as are publications not affixed to vertical surfaces.
You are welcome to display the text on your own room door using Command

Strips, subject to the 10% combustible materials limit. Consider hanging it on the inside of the door, as RIT Housing reserves the right to remove materials containing unprotected speech (see Policy C11.0) visible from public areas including doors and windows.

Continued non-compliance may affect your future posting privileges and may be referred to the Center for Student Conduct and Conflict Resolution. Please direct any questions to the Center for Residence Life.

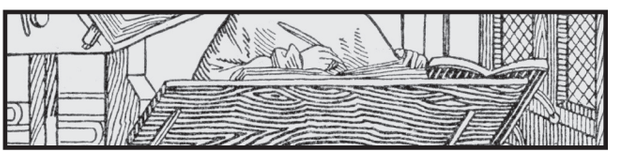
Re: Notice of Posting Violation and Removal

Dear Mr. Tetzel, I hope that you receive this message at a good time. Me, I am not doing so well. I have a few things I would like to bring up in regards to the letter you sent. The fires of hell condemn you, guardian of blasphemy and perversion of Christ's will![1] The Lord above cares not of the whims of man- these "posting" "policies" are but a thin veil behind which lies only the foulest corruption.

But should thou doubt my studies and understanding of the Lord, should thou doubt that I may align myself with him above your putrid machinations, I shall meet you at the level of men; to this I say, as my dear friend and loyal follower Sir Charles of Kirk[2] has spoken of upon many prestigious academies such as your own, here in the ~~British Colonies of America~~ United States,[3] we have federal protections for freedom of speech, which I do believe my theses are protected as.

I drive nails unto your Gracie's' walls same as nails were driven unto my saviour on the cross.



1 Translator's note: he means to say, "Man, fuck you."
2 Our Father rest his soul…
3 Historical note: Martin Luther (me) precedes the British colonies too.

Jesus didn't ask for his deposit back and charged no student accounts. Also, I drove a nail through concrete. I'm stronger than any pathetic god you bow to.

You condemn charitable giving, yet ask me to subsidize your flimsy concrete wall. Sounds kinda bull if you ask me. You're just big and greedy aren't you. But I recognize the bodies in the water. The theses were GREEN, I had every right to place them there. Viewpoint neutral subversive speech is an oxy as moronic as yourself.

Below is a list of some further thoughts. Fuck you.

1. When our Lord and Master Jesus Christ commands us to "make disciples of all nations" (Matthew 28:19-20), he does not exclude RIT students.
2. To warn those that their actions are wickedly is not to discriminate, but merely to help them to a better path.
3. The plural of "thesis" is now "thesisis." And an individual who is slutty, male, and nails thesisis on the wall is a thesisisissy.
4. The exception to point 4 is men named Martin. No reason.
5. You clearly have some concerns about religious posting, but I ask you this- why was my Computer Science professor teaching us Temple05?
6. Does Bruno Mars is gay only on weekends and weekdays and gay absolutely?
7. Mandatory Letterboxd account making for every student. Watch seven movies per week.
8. Make Jeff the Killer Creepypastas every day.
9. Jeff the kills you.
10. Oneyplays marathon must be conducted in place of dirt.
11. In a mirror, you can kiss yourself, but only on the lips.
12. Take one down, pass it around, 94 theses of truth on the wall.
13. 93 thesis of truth on the wall, ope one got taken down for plagiarism.
14. Meowwwwwwwww :3
15. I'm going to nail you against a wall like this is an AO3 fanfic.
16. Shrek 2: Garffeld's revenge
17. I forgot this one.
18. Did you know? You can kiss a mirror, but only on your own lips.
19. Dimensional Merge will happen on November 13th, 2026.
20. Every app is a Tiktok or a sideways Tiktok
21. Fandom Wiki without adblocker.
22. Pregnant them emoji. 🫃
23. Shrek Forever After (directors cut)

24. Fortnite 2 is forbidden.
25. Who is Micheal Jackson?
26. Aurafarming must be legal (somewhere).
27. Faxing Windows 95 patents is punishable by dog.
28. Fred goddammit you will help my wife commit horse.
29. Y'all sleeping on Desmos Porn.™ Those polynomials have YAMS.
30. Popcorn making at 4AM is punishable by death.
31. Popcorn making at any time is punishable by public flogging at the very minimum.
32. Why do they call it theses when you these is the 95 and door on the.
33. Why do they call it oven when you of in the hot food of out cold hot eat the food?
34. You're absolutely right - it was all written by AI.
35. WHAT THE FUCK IS A KILOMETER?!
36. Can you at least give me free tuition if I can't post freely because I've been a good student and have been learning soooooooo hard. (My brain is THROBBING with knowledge.)
37. Last night she said oh baby I feel so down it turns me off when I feel left out.
38. Oppa Martin style!
39. For i in range(95): print(theses[i])
    - for (int i = 0; i < 95; i++)
      - for (String str : theses)

40. Your honor, you weren't even fucking there.
    - And, I'm ballin.
        - And you can't handle this swag, sir.
41. Peter...the horse is here and he's hungry.
42. Fuckkkkkkkkkk I just killed my son with a rock in the name of the Lord and he screamed loud as fuckkkk man...
43. Speak to me only after you submerge yourself in sharpie in a bathtub, coward.
44. More like 67 theses!
45. All who say 67 go to mega hell.
46. .-.. --- --- -.- --..-- / .. - .----. ... / -- . .-.-.- / -- .- .-. - .. -. / .-.. ..- - .... . .-. .-.- .- / .. / .. -. ...- . -. - . -.. / -- --- .-. ... . / -.-. --- -.. . .-.-.-
47. MAKE EVERYONE IN PETERSON READ HOMESTUCK!
47.5 I give up. Fuck you. Die.

There will be only 47.5 theses here due to budget cuts. Stinkflation! I didn't make it to 95.

I defend my theses but the theses don't defend me. BUT I still think students who are too poor for RIT's partner 3M brand Command strips deserve to hang things on walls. What if all I had was a nail? Like the church I attempt to reform, I hope that price is never a barrier to Heaven (or free speech).

You make me pay for three years to write one thesis, and yet, a staggering 95 theses in under 285 years is met with nothing but hostility. Tough crowd.

Rubbing my belly, I'm so round and full,
Full of all these epic theses,
Martin Luther
(as in the first person that comes to mind when you hear the name Martin Luther. Right? Is that still true?)

P.S. this letter has anthrax and ants, good luck with both and take care of them for me.

P.P.S. "Gilgamesh, where are you hurrying to? You will never find that life for which you are looking. When the gods created man they allotted to him death, but life they retained in their own keeping. As for you, Gilgamesh, fill your belly with good things; day and night, night and day, dance and be merry, feast and rejoice. Let your clothes be fresh, bathe yourself in water, cherish the little child that holds your hand, and make your wife happy in your embrace; for this too is the lot of man."

P.P.P.S. have you heard of our lord and savior John Religion?

You awake in a small cave surrounded by water. The air is acrid, stale with the stench of death. Perhaps that's coming from the rat skulls everywhere.
Or maybe the Gracie's burger patties. What do you do?

> Go left
> Go right
> Get ye flask
> Start writing more epic theses.

History nerd? Tired of the lack of candles in your RIT housing?

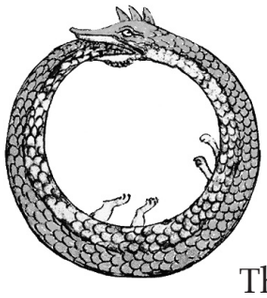
Letter of the N.G King of Hearts of Gleason Replying to Rhythm of Golisano



-by USS N.G King of Hearts

*T*hou Golisano Snob!

Sister and friend to the accursed college, studier of the filthiest of studies, greetings! What the hell kind of sleepful student art thou. The Computer voids and thy bed lays underused. Never wilt thou be fit to have a degree, for all under Golisano lack the capacity of proper speech. Thy college's stench be feared, but we shall prevail against ye, like the strangers ye feud with on the webs.

Thou claims the highest of tastes in motion pictures yet only remember five. Thou sleeps with woolen Monsters of Pocket yet hast never played the source. Thou hast read the horrid texts of the home stuck but never played the tales beneath nor the deltarune. Yet for some godforsaken reason thou knows the author names of ye games of tables, ye hater of draconic dungeons.

Thou says to love spice yet succumbs to its smallest of amounts. Thou hast the memory of a padded babe. And like those padded babes thou love the moving pictures of bouncing foams. Thou plays not the Paradox for they present histories inaccurate. Thou suggests to the commonfolk the system of linux.

This is what the King of Hearts have to say to thee, thou person of odd taste.

Also you're gay lol.

(Author's note: This message is based on the Correspondence between the Ottoman sultan and the Cossacks, which although traditionally dated to the 17th century, is considered to be apocryphal, believed to be literary forgery of anti-Ottoman propaganda created during various Ottoman wars in Europe.)

-by mighty_chondria

Hello lovelies, today we are looking at corporate data sharing. We've got no new sites, just a chance to keep your private life, well, private on sites you already use.

Case in point: Discord. They have updated their terms of service and will be making all messages on publicly discoverable servers[1] with 1000+ members available and indexable— in short Google-able. Now I don't know about you, but if I read my texts from ten years ago I cringe. Can't imagine an employer reading my gaming messages. There is an opt out: update the app then go to User Settings → Data &[2] Privacy → Turn off "Show my message content from Discoverable servers on web pages." This is one to act swiftly on, as it comes into effect Nov. 16 and setting changes do not allow retroactive privacy.

A rule of thumb is that if you are not the customer, then you are the product. Your data is valuable. It is also fundamentally yours. Unfortunately, this is another round of us having to work harder because corporations want to make money, but there are good steps.

Do you have Google Maps? That app logs your position constantly with pinpoint accuracy if Timeline is enabled.[3] In your app settings go to Settings & Privacy → Timeline. From here you can delete the data, export a personal copy, or turn on autodeletion. For general data collection, the stuff that's done whether or not you ever use the app, go to About, Terms & Privacy → Location Data Collection → Off. In general, it's a good idea to check what apps are given permission to your location, camera, and microphone— all are in your phone settings' app permissions.[4]

Your challenge is to learn what apps have your location. Just a scroll of the settings panel. You can always change the permissions later, but it's worth thinking about who you are willing to give your data. Next week we'll learn more about how that info gets used.

Good luck and happy settings surfing!

1 GDT is on Discord, and we'd love to see you there for shenanigans. We are not discoverable and respect our folks' privacy.

2 You know I'm serious when I use an ampersand.

3 With that they know your home and work, when your house is empty, what your hobbies are, how often you skip class, if you frequent a restaurant, if you drive over the speedlimit, or even if your dog changed up the walking pattern. It's...disquieting how much they can get from an algorithm.

4 Might be surprised what you find. An unnamed green owl asked for my location permissions.

Taiwanese Self-Derecognition Now!

-by Wasi A. Go

As the resident spiritual East Asian[1] of Gracies Dinnertime Theater, there is little doubt in my mind that the great leaders of the region eagerly await my geopolitical counsel, their agents combing the asbestos-laden halls of many a Rochesterian Technological Institutional building in hopes of procuring a new week's issue, tantamount to a Spanish expedition to find the city of gold, or if Sun Tzu was white. This week, my wisdom is to fall on the ears of the island nation of Taiwan,[2] to which I speak into; knock it off, guys.

For the unfamiliar, Taiwan is a remnant of the previous Chinese ruling party—the Kuomintang—after their defeat in the Chinese Civil War by the Michael Jordan of asymmetrical warfare,[3] and subsequent escape to exile on the island. They (as well as China, the People's Republic Of (PRC); henceforth referred to as just "China" to avoid confusion) adhere to the "Two Chinas" policy; they're both de facto[4] independent states with unique relations, but both claim to be China, and both lay claim to all involved territory, and yadda, yadda, yadda...come on now. Taiwan is the size of Maryland. Bigger clutches have happened, but they happened when the craziest thing you could do to a guy in a war was "stab him" and not "turn him into a silhouette on a building."

But hope is not lost. In fact, this is an unprecedented geopolitical situation ripe for exploitation, with but one prerequisite from the Taiwanese powers that be— let it go, bruh. It's over. If China wants to be China, and claims you're part of China, why not—de jure[5]—allow that to be the case? Everything you do is now "something that China did." Don't you see? This is a golden opportunity for crimes in the international court of law, the likes of which are seen nowhere else but [redacted].[6] How many of the UN's rules shall we violate? Let me count the ways...

壹 — Re-introduction of the forbidden sixth Xuan Nu school to Wuzuquan Five Ancestor Boxing and layered integration of Dim Mak in the military.

貳 — Usage of "Tian-adjacent weaponry" to "reveal to the enemy the visage of the Jade Emperor."[7]

參 — Reincarnation of Wang Lang and the 17 other Masters Invited to Shaolin in an attempt to apply the Northern Praying Mantis style to a Norinco QBZ-95.

肆 — Awaken the White Tiger of the West.

伍 — ~~Engage in massive-scale IUU (Illegal, Unreported, and Unregulated fishing) outside your Exclusive Economic Zone, dedicating the bulk operation of an entire naval sub-branch to waging a fishing-war with Pacific South America, to the point where they create a permanent naval coalition to protect the economic and environmental interests of their territorial waters.~~[8]

陸 — Ignore the 1995 Commission on the Powers of Trigrams, utilizing Yijing Sixty-Four Hexagram Later Heaven-based superpositional divinatory eigenweapons in the reconquest of the Mandate of Heaven.

1 As in "spiritually East Asian", not "East Asian who is spiritual." I play mahjong, I'm not Confucian.
2 Officially the Republic of China, but we'll get to that in a second.
3 I'm not a fan of the guy, but holy shit.
4 Spanish for "the facto", as in "the facto is that this is the way things are."
5 Spanish for "the jure" as in "it jure is nice that this is the way things appear on paper."
6 I'd like to thank AIPAC for their generous donation of NT$1000 (approx. $30 USD) and a "wow, it's so cool how you're in tune with other cultures like that" to me personally.
7 This one actually got shot down at the General Assembly a few years back.
8 I've just been told "we already let China do this."

柒 — Let non-medical combatants wear the Red Cross.

捌 — Take on quadrillions of dollars in national debt via "really big payday loans," making sure all the checks are made out to "China." Spend it all on even more dubiously war-criminal spiritual/mythological wonderweapons, so when the aliens that countries owe "national debt" to come to collect (and subsequently destroy the world when China opens their wallet and it's empty but for a single fly), Taiwan will remain unscathed.

I think if Chiang Kai-shek read this infinitely prescient future vision for the nation of Taiwan, he would be confused, because he did not speak English.[9] However, I believe the legendary Kuomintang general would appreciate the passion in my words, and maybe say something like "You've got spunk, kid." or "I didn't know white boys could be so auspicious." or maybe "I've been dead for 51 years and can't say anything to contribute to this quote [in Wu Chinese]." Thanks, Big C. I'm personally hoping that I'm spiritually Boxer Rebellion-adjacent enough to end up with pretty good standing in Tian. Maybe I'll be able to shoot for mid-level bureaucrat!

9 Editor's note: some sources say he spoke very poor English, others say he spoke none. His wife, Madame Chiang, was fluent in English and could have begrudgingly translated this for him.

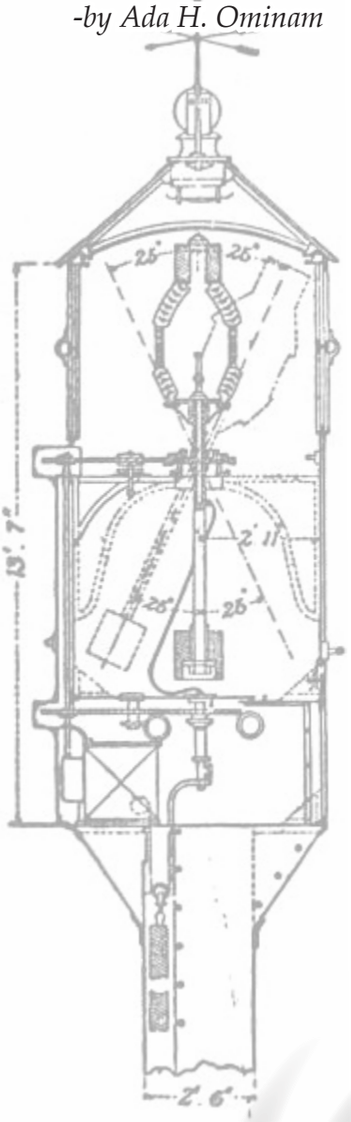
A Publication A Day Keeps The Seasonal Depression Away

Ampulex Compressa

-by Ada H. Ominam



I'm afraid of the zombies. My skin turns green at the sight of blood and my stomach churns like a washing machine with the smell of rotting meat.
I hate the stiffening of hands, arms, and feet;
rigorous rigor mortis makes meek men rampage, limbs straightened and snapped into tools for a bacteriophage conjured by little men who want to steer lives, draining thoughts like blowing smoke into beehives.
Before I knew it, I'd painted the mirror red—you can't see the green through a mirror discolored.
I'm afraid of the zombies. When my skin turned green and smelled of rotting meat, and my stomach churned with hunger at the sight of blood, I don't think I even noticed how behind my eyes little men began to drive me in accordance with all traffic laws, or how the bees slipped so quietly into passivity's maws.
Before I knew it, it took 40 minutes or more to check their time before my legs hit the floor.
