

Where the Hell is GDT?!

Well, we've been having some technical difficulties. As some of you have noticed, Hell's Kitchen's website (www.hellsKitchen.org) has been out of commission for a couple of weeks. What's that got to do with this week's issue of GDT? Well, the facts are here.

As you may recall, Gracies Dinnertime Theatre is delivered by fairy. The GDT Fairy, to be exact. Well, a few weeks ago, our offices were infested by squirrels. It's something of a long story, but suffice to say that a large fire consumed most of our offices, including the lab where our computer equipment is stored.

We've moved the hosting of the website off-shore temporarily, so you can still catch up on back issues. However, the GDT Fairy hasn't been the same since the fire. Unable to get his regular Internet fix, he's been going through terrible withdrawal symptoms. A fairy with the shakes is a sad creature.

Again, we at GDT are sorry for this inconvenience, but the GDT Fairy has a prescription for methadone now, and we hope he'll soon be flying straight enough to avoid smaller buildings.

Yours, GDT Staff
